Mayor's Desk by Cr Rachel Chambers

In a few weeks I'll be speaking at an economic forum, followed by a local government conference and then meeting with state government, each time to share our issues with the the intent of finding solutions to them.

Speaking nowadays is pretty much going the way everything else is, the quicker the better. Elevator pitches are the norm and it's widely recommended to stick to no more than three main points (apparently that's all we as humans can remember). As I'm not particularly known for my brevity of conversations (just ask my husband) and there are a great many things I'd love to throw my lobbying weight behind, I've had to invest some thought into what I want to say on your behalf, on behalf of council, and on behalf of the entire region. So this is my 3 point pitch in a nutshell:

1. Population vs productivity. Yes we have just over 10,000 people, less than an average size suburb on the coast, but we punch well above our weight by being in the top 20% of all local government areas nationally for GDP per capita. We need to change the conversation. When competing with other areas for funding or other means of support, our population works against us. I need everyone to start looking at our productivity instead of our population and start valuing the vast quantity of produce and product which comes out of our region.

2. A connected region is a sustainable region. Each time I have the opportunity to speak to anyone with any pull I use the word connected. This era is the first time regional Australia has had the chance to be on an almost level playing field as our city cousins with the transformation of the internet allowing everyone to compete globally. We need to be connected with technology, with transport logistics, and with each other.

3. Liveability. We all agree that this is an immensely productive, incredibly beautiful region but I argue that we need to improve its liveability. Public transport, public parks and gardens, access to health services and entertainment options don't often make the grade when it comes to our region, why you may ask...please refer to point one.

So what do you think? If you had the opportunity to pick three regional issues to speak about in an attempt to find a solution, what would they be? Talk soon, Rachel.
